Navy Clinging To Slight Hope For Akron Survivors

Search Is Extended For Possible Trace Of Floating Dirigible

MAY HAVE DRIFTED MANY MILES NOW

Some Fragments Of Wreckage Of Akron Are Reported Found

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff

LAKEHURST, N. J., Apr. 6.—The navy has not as yet officially given up all hope for the 73 men, missing since the Akron plunged into the Atlantic east of Barnegat Lighthouse early Tuesday morning.

The search continued today with navy men saying that there may be a thousand-to-one chance that when the wreck of the Akron is finally located a few survivors may still be clinging to it. They base this admittedly fantastic hope on the nine gas bags inside the envelope of the ship.

These bags, the naval people say, might keep the wreck afloat indefinitely assuming that they were not smashed when the ship hit the water. Undoubtedly many of the siders were broken when the dirigible landed and they may have punctured the gas bags, in which case the wreckage would have sunk quickly.

Drift Long Ways?

The fact that the wreck has not yet been sighted does not necessarily mean that it has sunk. The intense darkness of early Tuesday morning and the heavy fog of the day limited visibility to less than a hundred feet for nearly 12 hours after the dirigible crashed and in this time the wreck could have drifted a long ways, the navy men argue.

The search has been extended to one hundred miles from land with the Cruiser Portland and its planes, coast guard ships from Cape May and Barnegat Point, and a squadron of seaplanes from Norfolk, Va., co-operating in systematically combing the ocean east of the Jersey coast.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Persons who have been advocating return of beer for the past ten or a dozen years, will now have opportunity to see just how much demand there really is for the beverage. PA New is of the opinion that the demand will not be nearly so heavy as many have been proclaiming.

Activity at the new postoffice site on the public square is being pushed along at a steady pace, despite the rain that has interfered with progress.

Some New Castle and Lawrence County men will be given employment in reforestation work in the state forests under President Roosevelt's plan, it is indicated. The men sent to the forests will live in camps similar to those occupied at Pymatuning dam clearing work for a year or more, advance indications seem to be.

Statistics for the same date a year ago follow:

Fate Kind To Her

Wife Of Akron Survivor Is Widow Of Shenandoah Victim

After her first husband, Petty Officer Joffrey, lost his life in the crash of the dirigible Shenandoah in 1925, Mrs. Joffrey married Richard Deal, boatswain's mate, a close friend of her first husband. A whim of fate spared Mrs. Deal from being widowed again, by the second of the two greatest American airship disasters. Deal, shown with Mrs. Deal, above, was one of the three survivors of the disaster which befell the Akron.

Airship Macon Will Start Trial Flights Sometime Next Week

Only Remaining Fighting Dirigible Owned By Navy Nears Completion

Is Many Thousand Pounds Lighter Than Ill-Starred U. S. S. Akron

AKRON, O., April 5.—The U. S. S. Macon, only remaining fighting airship owned by the navy and scheduled to fly for the first time next week, is of the same essential construction as the ill-starred U. S. S. Akron, destroyed off the Jersey coast with heavy loss of life, Good-year-Zeppelin Corporation spokesman said today.

Acquired by the United States from Germany in lieu of war reparations, the U. S. S. Los Angeles, only other rigid airship in the navy, was delivered under specific injunction against use as a combatant naval unit.

Macon is lighter. While the Macon is several thousand pounds lighter than the Akron, the weight savings was attained almost exclusively through redesigning accessories and not from different design of the superstructure or framework. In the latter, High Alton, spokesman for the Zeppelin works, said, the construction of the two ships is virtually identical. In length, height, gas volume, power plants and many other particulars the two ships are identical. (Continued On Page Two)

No Beer Control For Illinois As Solons Disagree

More Than 1,500 Trucks Being Loaded At Breweries Today For Big Celebration

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, April 6.—More than 1,500 trucks were being loaded in the breweries today for quick delivery as Chicago awaited the stroke of midnight to celebrate the return of legal beer and the end of a 13-year-thirst.

The new 3.2 per cent beer will flow in Chicago and throughout Illinois without the contemplated state regulations due to the failure of the lower house at Springfield last night to agree on the beer control measure. Several weeks will be required to draw up and pass a new control bill, it was conceded.

Drys In State Plan For Fight Against Repeal

More Than 1000 Ardent Dry Supporters Attend Mass Meeting In Harrisburg

WILL ASK BEER SALE BE STOPPED

Will Try To Elect Dry Delegates To State Convention For Repeal Vote

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, April 6.—Undaunted by the inevitable flood of beer throughout the country tomorrow, Pennsylvania's dry forces today were laying the groundwork for a finish fight against proposed repeal of the eighteenth amendment and for a ban on beer in the state.

At a rally here more than 1,000 prohibition leaders girded for a war against the wets by:
1. Electing a committee of nine as a nucleus for a state wide organization that will reach down into every local voting precinct to elect dry delegates to Pennsylvania's repeal convention.
2. Calling on the legislature to amend the state prohibition enforcement law to prevent manufacture and sale in Pennsylvania of federal legalized 3.2 per cent beer.
3. Demanding that local officials use their police powers to restrict beer distribution in the state until the general assembly.

New Beer Is No Driving Excuse

HARRISBURG, Apr. 6.—Whether you drink legalized 3.2 beer or more volatile stuff, if you drive an automobile while intoxicated you're still liable to arrest, Wilson C. Price, state highway patrol head, said today.
"The highway patrol is not interested in what drivers drink," said Price. "When an arrest is made a physician will determine if the driver is intoxicated. The cause of intoxication does not enter into it."

MacDonald Will Have Objectives In Visit To U. S.

Three Big Objectives Will Be Discussed By Prime Minister Of England

DEFINITE PLANS BEING OUTLINED

MacDonald Ready With Bags Packed To Start In Short Time

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Eastertide visit of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to Washington is understood here to have three principal objectives:

1. To complete, if possible, the basis of an Anglo-American accord with reference to the forthcoming world economic conference.
2. To arrange, if possible, postponement of the British debt installment of nearly $100,000,000 due June 15, pending negotiations for downward revision of the entire $4,000,000,000 debt structure.
3. By personal contact and tactful diplomacy to overcome, if possible, the distinctly bad effect which the bustling debt speeches of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, created in the United States some weeks ago.

World Economic Problems
Public emphasis will be placed on the first of the out-lined objectives, the world economic conference, its plans, agenda, and the general need for Anglo-American cooperation.

But privately the British cabinet is coming in for some serious discussion. Britain is desperately anxious to be relieved of the June 15 payment. Indeed, Chamberlain in the speeches he made before being "muzzled" by the British cabinet went so far as to say that come what may the British intended the payment of last December to be the last under the existing agreement. The informal nature of the prime minister's visit to Washington is emphasized by the fact no formal invitation has been issued from this side of the Atlantic. In his statement yesterday, President Roosevelt informally expressed his hope that MacDonald "would come over."

Coming For Business
No reference was made to the possibility of other foreign statesmen following in MacDonald's footsteps. Nevertheless, the prospect is that several will be coming, just as they followed him in 1930, when then Premier Laval of France, and then Premier Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, made their appearance here.

That they will not be coming to view the beauties of Washington's celebrated cherry blossoms is self-evident. Preliminary conferences about (Continued On Page Two)

New York May Make Whoopee

Divided Sentiment In New York As To Celebration Of Beer's Return

HOTEL MEN SEEK QUIET RECEPTION

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 6.—New York stood divided against itself today on the manner in which the advent of legal beer should be observed in Gotham.

One faction favored a "whoopie" night, starting at midnight tonight when the sale of the new 3.2 brew becomes legal. This faction would celebrate the occasion in the manner of the birth of a son and heir. Another faction would permit the amber suds to slip into the city quietly and without ostentation, much after the manner of an ex-convict returning after 13 years "up the river."

May Blow Off Lid.
Park avenue, Broadway, the Bowery, the east side, the Bronx and "Hell's Kitchen" would blow off the lid in one vigorous whiff at the foam at the top of brimming steins, to the accompaniment of brass bands, parades and nocturnal festivities. They believe this is an occasion which should be duly celebrated with dance and song.
The brewers, hotel men and restaurateurs frown upon such festivity. (Continued On Page Two)

Rivers Flooded In Mississippi Delta District

Levees Of Rivers Burst Under Pressure; Thousands Forced To Flee

VALUABLE LAND IS INUNDATED

Tons Of Water Pour Thru Big Breaks In Levees; Heavy Spring Rains

(International News Service)
GREENWOOD, Miss., April 6.—Levees of three Mississippi delta rivers burst today under the pressure of pentup flood waters, sending a tide of rolling flood waters gushing over thousands of acres, and driving 2,500 bottom land dwellers from their homes.

The Teoc levee, four miles north of this city, went out with a roar, river waters surging into outlying residential sections, forcing 300 from their residences.

A four-foot break widened to a 50-foot gap in less than an hour as the river waters battered the banks with the force of a hydraulic ram. Levees of the Tallahatchie and Coldwater rivers between Lambert and Glendora burst and 200 fled before the advancing tidal wave.

Two thousand others left their homes throughout the delta as rivers, choked by heavy spring rains, bucked over their embankments. The flood struck the delta region just as it was beginning to recover from the devastating series of tornadoes of last week which claimed 53 lives in Mississippi.

THREE SCHOOL BOARD PLACES TO BE FILLED AT COMING ELECTION

That ominously familiar rumble you hear in the distance is not the sound of distant guns. It's armor rattling, political armor as the candidates prepare to enter the September jousting, and from this far away the rattling will be deafening. All of the rumbling thus far comes from the candidates for the paying offices. Whether it be salaries or fees there are a host of gentlemen willing to offer themselves on the altar of public service—for a compensation; but none so far have suggested that they are willing to run for the school board.
An Important Office.
Seriously, the office of school director, always an important office, is more than usually so at the present time and the electors of New Castle can well afford to scan with care the candidates who can be induced to run. Induced is the proper word for under the present school situation few there are who are capable who would willingly offer to serve.
There are three places to fill on the New Castle school board this year, the places of Walter W. Duff, Attorney Roy W. Hazen and Mrs. John E. Elliott. The two men have served a full term of six years, and Mrs. Elliott has served four years of an unexpired term.
Oddly enough the three members whose terms expire this year have (Continued On Page Two)

OFFICIALS WILL CHECK EFFECT OF LEGALIZED BEER

Hope That Legalizing Beer Will Make Hard Liquor Enforcement Easier

CONCENTRATION BY DRY AGENTS

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Enforcement officials in the treasury and department of justice awaited the return of beer with keen interest today giving chief attention to its effects on the violation of the unmodified sections of the Volstead act.

Director A. V. Dalmayre of the bureau of prohibition asserted that enforcement of the law against violators who produce and distribute "hard" liquors will be simplified by the legalization of light wines and beers.

The bureau will concentrate on the more serious violations of the law, with a belief that the manufacture and smuggling of heavy liquors may be suppressed to a considerable extent.

Other officials were dubious. They took the attitude that the generations that have "come on" since the 18th amendment went into the constitution have acquired a taste for the powerful synthetic whiskeys and gins of the prohibition period and will not be satisfied with the comparatively gentle kick that recoils in a bottle of 3.2 per cent beer or wine.

RELIEF ORDERS MUST NOT BE USED FOR BEER

Emergency Relief Board Issues Warning To Persons Getting Aid

While there is no mention of beer in the resolution passed by the Lawrence County Emergency Relief board on Wednesday, by indirectness the board has said that anyone using a relief order to secure it will be barred from further orders.
The order itself says that "anyone found using relief orders to secure anything else but for the purpose for which the relief order is intended shall not be granted any further orders. Also any retail merchant who gives anything but food in return for these orders will be barred from accepting relief orders in the future. The reason for this action is due to the decreasing amount of funds that are available for food relief and it has become necessary to make these food orders go just as far as possible."
This is taken to mean that tobacco cannot be secured or sold on relief orders, nor can pop, candy or the like. Among those things not listed as food are beer and inasmuch as some retail grocers plan to handle beer in case lots, the order includes beer.

Rev. A. Ryan, recently returned missionary from Africa, will be the special speaker at the meeting of the Young People of the Primitive Methodist church, Friday evening at 7:30.

Assembly Fails To Pass Measure Regulating Beer

Action Is Delayed Until Session At Harrisburg Next Week

STATE GETS NO REVENUE YET

Beer Sales To Be Without State Regulation Until Next Week At Least

By WILLIAM J. KELLY
International News Service Staff

HARRISBURG, Apr. 6.—A strife-torn assembly adjourned the legislative week today without passing a bill to control and tax beer in Pennsylvania.

Legislators thus assumed the responsibility which political foes of Gov. Gifford Pinchot had hoped would be thrust upon him through eleventh-hour passage of a regulatory measure. Veto awaited the Sowers-Connor bill if it went to the governor's desk.

The bill was up for third reading and final passage in the Senate today when Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, moved to amend it and Senator Henry L. Snyder (D) Lehigh seconded the motion. Accompanied by the amendment automatically laid the bill over until the next legislative day for final passage.

Kills Yesterday's Amendment
McClure's amendment struck out the provisions entered by Snyder yesterday. The Lehigh senator had proposed that sale of beer be permitted.

To Seek Relief Loan For State

Pennsylvania Committee Appears Before R. F. C. With Appeal

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, April 6.—Pennsylvania pinned hopes of obtaining relief loans from the federal government on the appearance today of a special committee before the reconstruction finance corporation in Washington.

The committee, consisting of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, members of the state emergency relief board and seven legislators, was to place Pennsylvania's acute relief needs before the R. F. C. Directorate. Unless financial aid is obtained, Governor Pinchot estimated funds possessed by county relief boards will be exhausted by April 15.

The state board authorized a new system of food relief to be used in Philadelphia county. The plan, based along the lines of the commissary market, provides for the issuance of standard rations through several poor distributors in that county.

Arthur Mometer

Just sixteen years ago today, surely it's not that long ago, that bugles blew and war was on, and men were called upon to go. Just sixteen years, just sixteen days, or sixteen ages so it seems, the memory of it still remains, colored with specters as in dreams. The bugles blew and drums were rolled and men went out in squads and files, to plod their way to grief and blood, to drill and march mile after miles. All that is past long years ago, the lads are getting bald and gray, who answered then that bugle call, the weather's forty two today.

SEE DUAL CONGRESS PROBE OF AKRON CRASH

Second Congress Probe Is Sought

Want Investigation Free Of Any Possible Naval Influence

SURVIVORS TELL STORY OF CRASH

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Apr. 6.—Two congressional investigations into the Akron tragedy loomed today as the result of an increasing demand in the house for an inquiry free of all possible naval influence.

With the house naval affairs committee preparing to start its own inquiry, the rules committee was to be asked to approve the setting up of a special committee with at least $25,000 to make an investigation.

The demand was voiced both by those who fear the influence of the naval group which has fought aviation, and those who believe the dirigible may come into its own in trans-oceanic travel.

Meanwhile a naval investigation board headed by Rear Admiral Phelps of the New York area was announced by the navy department to conduct the department's investigation. The three survivors of the crash already have given Secretary of Navy Swanson, their stories of the crash. They are Lt. Comdr. H. V. Wiley, Richard E. Deal and Moody F. Erwin.

THREE SCHOOL BOARD PLACES TO BE FILLED AT COMING ELECTION

served as the budget committee, probably the most exacting, and the most thankless job on the whole board. There has been the task to prune expenditures down to where they would fit the income and to their credit it must be said that they have done this and in addition have sliced one mill from this coming year's levy.

Only So Far. The school board can go just so far and no farther in the matter of cutting down expenditures. Under the school code of the state, there are certain salary requirements that must be met, certain things that must be done, and in addition the present board inherited a heavy fixed charge account which cannot possibly be reduced except by paying off bonds.

No attempt at flattery is intended in making the statement that all three of the members mentioned above have been efficient, sincere and industrious. There was no enviable job, preparing the budget for the board. Necessity forced them to take steps they disliked, among them the abandonment of the shops, the swimming pools, the home economics classes, art and music supervisors, a principal, a number of teachers and a severe slashing in other items which only necessity could justify. They met their responsibilities head on and much as they disliked to do what they did, they went through with it and the other board members endorsed their plans.

Two of them have stated flatly they will not run. Walter W. Duff and Attorney Roy W. Hazen. Mrs. Elliott has not said that she will run nor has she said that she wouldn't. The two men have said so emphatically although their friends are endeavoring to bring about a change of mind.

"I have given six years to the work of the board," said Mr. Duff, "and I believe I am entitled to give more time to my business."

"My professional duties demand more of my time," said Mr. Hazen, "and I do not expect to be a candidate."

"I have not fully made up my mind," said Mrs. Elliott. "The demands of the school board are exacting and I am not convinced yet that I will run. The next few months will decide."

Long Weary Hours.

The three members have devoted long weary hours to the work of the schools here. They fully realize the importance of economy in their tenure of office and every year saw them combing the entire system looking for new places to cut. As a result of their research and their refusal to temporize with a most unenviable task, not less than $250,000 has been cut from the budget in the past three years.

Perhaps it is wisdom that school directors are not paid a salary. Certainly the three mentioned could not be induced to take a public office of the importance of the school board at salaries paid to similar jobs in other branches of government. Their service has been a patriotic one and whether every taxpayer realizes it or not, their work has been of a character that merits the hearty approval of all.

There is a possibility that Mrs. Elliott will run again. It seems doubtful that Duff or Hazen will. Once their minds are made up they are about as resilient as a piece of marble and if they do run it will be only after some one has demonstrated to them that they are needed in the work of the school board.

It would seem too bad that all three of them would refuse to run. They have spent so much time with the financial end of the board work that they are thoroughly familiar with it. The other members of the board have been busy with other details of the work, having every confidence in the budget committee that its members would perform their duty to the utmost of their ability. This they have done.

So when the rumbling in the west becomes a roar that rattles the windows and has the average citizen debating the various offices on the street corners, it would be wise to give some thought to the school board.

The board has a budget of over a million dollars. The outdoor for the coming year is one that will require calm judgment and a capacity for hard work if the school bill is to be paid 100 cents upon the dollar. It will take members who are capable and who are willing to devote their time to a highly important task, with the full knowledge that the only compensation will probably be criticism from the unthinking.

ties. They would have no special notice taken of the reappearance of the amber fluid in the city after a legal absence of 13 years. In the words of Col. Jacob Ruppert, head of the Ruppert breweries and president of the United States Brewers' association, beer should be "delivered just as food and soft drinks are distributed, starting Friday morning at the usual business hour."

The manufacturers, distributors and retailers fear that any unusual Baccanian festivities accompanying the advent of legalized beer will have an unfavorable reaction upon the country at large, and may impede the prospective repeal of the 18th amendment.

the world economic conference will be in the forefront, and debts in the background, for thus far the Roosevelt administration has been cool to debt discussion without assurances of something compensatory for American trade in exchange for debt concessions. And June 15 daily grows nearer.

The French status in this international business is not clear at the moment. The administration is perfectly willing, even desirous, of bringing France into the Anglo-American picture of the world economic conference. But as regards the debts, that is something else again.

No Move By France

France has made no move so far to "cure the default" of some $20,000,000 which she failed to pay the treasury last December 15. Until that default is cured by payment of the over-due amount, she is in a different category from those debtors that did meet their obligations.

Secretary of State Hull, who has been knee-deep in conversations with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, ever since March 6, steadfastly declines to say that debt negotiations will be undertaken with the defaulters until the over-due payments are met. As he phrases it, he is "not prepared to say" that the administration is willing to sit in on discussions with defaulters.

Meantime, it appears that the scope and character of the world conference may be determined by the Eastside conferences in Washington.

MacDonald All Packed

LONDON, April 6.—An official invitation from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald to come to the United States for a discussion of economic problems is expected to be cabled from Washington today, according to information in government circles here.

In the knowledge of such an invitation would be forthcoming, MacDonald has made all arrangements for the trip, even to ordering that his golf clubs be stowed away with his baggage.

who will be recruited under the program, to be housed in tented colonies of not more than 200 each over the expanses of the nation's forests.

"The tents will be very comfortable," he pointed out. "They will have wooden floors and sidewalks, and there will be from four to six men in each tent. Each colony will have a kitchen of frame construction and a mess tent. The office and commissary buildings also will be of frame construction."

The recruiting of the men at present is in the hands of the Department of Labor, he said, and the first workers to go into the forests will be from the larger cities.

"However, we hope to be able to do a good deal of recruiting in the communities of this section before long," he added. "Recruiting stations will co-operate closely with relief and welfare organizations in order that we may reach the heart of the emergency at once."

Work in the Allegheny national forest will be concentrated on planting during the spring season, he stated, with attention to road betterment and forest fire prevention to follow.

Supervisor Bishop was ordered at the conference in Washington to have two camps, at Byrntown, Forest county, and Heart's Content, near Sheffield, ready for occupancy by April 15. A third camp at Dunkie's Corners, 10 miles from Kane, must be ready by May 1.

According to present plans there will be seven camps in operation in the Allegheny forest by July 1, with a total of 10 established before the summer is over.

He pointed out that virtually the same procedure as outlined for the Allegheny forest, which includes 370,000 acres of wooded land in McKean, Elk, Forest and Warren counties, will be followed in other federal forests throughout the nation.

mitted in all eating establishments regardless of the existence of a bar. Shortly after accepting the amendment the senate adjourned until Monday night.

The senate recognized that the responsibility of getting the Sowers-Conner bill to the governor today rested alone with itself but with the house, too.

The measure came to the senate conditionally. Democrats in the lower branch joined in passing it hurriedly on the promise that it would be amended on the other side of the capitol "to meet practically all objections." This has not been done and if the senate had passed the measure it would have to be returned to the house where wrath instead of concurrence was believed awaiting it.

No State Revenue Yet

Senators have stricken out the bi-Partisan revenue system of issuing licenses as proposed by the Democrats and again have substituted county court judges. Governor Pinchot is opposed to both plans and wants the licenses issued by the department of revenue.

Politically, the situation carries many serious complications. Economically, the fact remains that beer will flow the length and breadth of Pennsylvania after midnight tonight without a cent of revenue for the commonwealth. There are no restrictions as to sale as far as the state is concerned and there will be none until the assembly and Governor Pinchot agree on the provisions of a control bill.

Photos, taken a moment apart, show the airship diving into the ocean and after the blimp collapsed.

Bids Are Close For Flood Gates At Pymatuning

Only $25 separates two Sharon bidders on the contract for the construction of flood gates at the Pymatuning Dam, it was announced in Harrisburg today. Johnson and McIntyre bid $9870 and A. Wishart Co. $9895. In the ordinary course of events Johnson and McIntyre would be given the job of building the gates.

Other bids were Joseph Luteri, of Somerset $11,200; C. R. Cummins of Cleveland, $13,000; Nathan Rogers Construction Company, $14,000. The two latter companies are from Cleveland, O. The Cummins Company being the company that built the dam itself.

The flood gates mark the beginning of the end of the Pymatuning Dam job. The dam breast works are built, the area is cleared, the highway from Espyville to Andover is being built and if the appropriation of $500,000 now in the General Assembly goes through, the relocation of highways will be possible.

Butler Chosen As Head Of Inquiry Into Akron Crash

Rear Admiral William V. Butler Will Replace Admiral Phelps As Inquiry Head

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Rear Admiral William V. Butler, commandant of the Washington naval yard, was chosen today to replace Rear Admiral W. W. Phelps as head of the navy board of inquiry into the Akron disaster.

AIRSHIP MACON WILL START TRIAL FLIGHTS SOMETIME NEXT WEEK

A hundred or more minor alterations were made where greater efficiency or a savings in weight was possible.

Decisions Withheld.

During all test flights the Macom, as in the case of the Akron, will be the property of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation. The navy does not formally take over such aircraft until thoroughly satisfied with tests.

Whether the Macom will be subjected by the navy to more rigid tests than the Akron, in view of the disaster to its sister ship, no one was in position to state at the moment. The decision rests with the navy department which probably will make known its position after learning more details of the crash.

fuel tank. Naval officers at Lakehurst suggested that the wreckage of the Akron might be found in the same condition, submerged a foot or so below the water. In that case no salvage operations will be held. The wreck will be sunk.

Burial At Arlington. Last night the bodies of Lieutenant Commander Harold E. Maclelland and Chief Machinists Mate Pasquale Bettio were taken from Point Pleasant to Washington where burial will be held this afternoon at Arlington cemetery. Maclelland's body was found near the scene of the Akron tragedy late Tuesday while Bettio was a J-3 victim.

Funeral services for Lieutenant Commander David E. Cummins, who was in command of the J-3 were held yesterday at his home at Lakehurst.

A pathetic memorial service also was held at the Lakehurst public school. Principal Norman Burke led his sixty pupils out into the yard in front of the school. Twenty of the children were either sons or daughters of Akron victims. The knowledge that their fathers had been lost had been kept from them. Mr. Burke raised a flag and as he did so the children saluted and in unison chanted: "pledge of their allegiance to the flag, in the service of which so many of their fathers had died."

Report Oil Patch. Washington, Apr. 6.—A large oil "slick" or patch, was sighted today on the water about 22 miles southeast of the spot where the Akron crashed.

The navy was advised of the discovery by the heavy cruiser Portland, headquarters ship for the searching fleet.

Such an oil patch on the water usually means the presence of some sort of machinery using oil submerged below.

Find Akron Fragments. Washington, Apr. 6.—First fragments of the ill-fated dirigible Akron which crashed early Tuesday, with the loss of 73 lives, were found today 50 miles southeast of the crash position, by destroyers accompanying the heavy cruiser Portland, the navy department was told today. These fragments will be assembled at Lakehurst by Comdr. James L. Fischer and will be presented as exhibits to the naval board of inquiry ordered to sit on Monday.

The first object believed to have been a part of the Akron was a 22 pound aluminum gasoline tank, empty, and bearing a serial number. It was discovered by the navy destroyer Bernard.

Several Objects Found. After receiving the Portland's message the aeronautics division of the navy said the tank "undoubtedly is one from the Akron."

Other objects found near the spot where the tank was discovered include a spare radio transmitter power tube, intact and in its shipping crate; a life raft from the airplane compartment of the Akron; some wood fragments apparently from the Akron, and a bumper bag from the car of the blimp J-3.

The J-3 dropped into the ocean off the Jersey coast Tuesday afternoon, while searching for survivors of the Akron. Two of her crew drowned.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Considerable wreckage was sighted off Barnegat beach by Lt. Com. John H. Strong, in charge of the airplane searching crew from the Philadelphia navy yard.

Strong advised the navy department that he and the other pilots combing the area where the airship Akron went down had reported the find to surface craft which were proceeding to the scene.

All Of Us

BY MARSHALL MASLIN

"LET ME BE"
"Let me be!" cries the infant struggling to walk.
"Let me be!" cries the old man with his cane.
"Let me be!" begs the youth, the maiden, the woman in her prime, the man in his strong maturity.
"Let me be!" cry all things, all creatures of this world.

The bird on the limb, the little furry animal in the underbrush, the flower on the twig—all these ask to be let alone. The dog growls, the cat scratches, the horse tosses his proud head and thunders away from you. All that lives asks only to be let alone. . . . You sink your spade into the brown and virginal earth. You take your spade away and the earth crumbles from the edges of the pit you have dug. Seeds fly in and germinate, grass grows, a new growth covers the old earth, and soon there's but a green dimple in the land where you have dug. Man takes away his disruptive hand and nature makes amends for the damage he has done, sympathizing with that deep desire to "let me be."

You follow your own self-chosen path and some one volunteers, "You are on the wrong road; take that turning to the left." And something within you resents the warning. How does that other know so confidently that you have gone astray. In your heart you know that this path, so little used, is the only one that will lead to discovery and peace.

In little ways, in matters of great moment, we are profoundly alone in this world. We are on our own, stubborn adventure and only we know whether we are bound. . . . We cry in various ways—by a shrug of the shoulders or by strong defiance—"Let me be! Let me be!" and there's little, indeed, that any other may do to divert us or to hinder.

We are bound, each of us, for one goal, but we travel by devious paths, some by the highway and some by the trail through the woods. We may meet you on yonder hill, but we shall all travel alone. Joyously, more companionably, if we remember that we must let the other fellow "be."

SPRIT OF SPORT

Soon men who have had very little exercise all winter will be able to pursue their favorite outdoor sport.

They will throw themselves with enthusiasm into a program similar to that enjoyed by them when they ceased to play last fall.

Instead of beginning gradually in the Spring and increasing efforts they will try to take things up where they left them.

Consequently many will return to their homes in a state of exhaustion.

For days they will feel the results of their indiscretions.

Therefore, instead of their outdoor amusement doing them some good, it will have a detrimental effect physically, and perhaps mentally.

It is poor policy for middle-aged men to permit themselves to overdo, whether it be outdoors of temper because of a mislay or too much physical exertion.

It is surprising how many men become mentally aroused by poor play, which is to be expected when one is out of practice.

When men become sensible—and this applies to women as well—they will use common sense in amusements as well as in other things and not be completely carried away with the exhilarating atmosphere and joy at being "out again," frustrating the spirit of sport.

THE FUTURE

I heard one cry: "This is the end of all." And then beyond tomorrow I could see Forests of beauty that are yet to be;

Great oaks that got their start from acorns small,
And countless undone tasks that soon shall call

For courage and for skill, and for the fronting me
Were high achievements prisoned now, set free

By men who dared to scale new wisdom's wall.
I saw great shelves of splendid books which yet
Remain unopened within the minds of men;

Crowns of young glory which the brave shall get
And roads to conquest still beyond our ken.
The end of all! Welcome the rising sun!

The things which man shall do are scarce begun.

HOW TO OPEN A TEA ROOM
Beginners and former gasoline station operators who have fallen heir to money are often in a maze as to how to invest their money. We suggest they open tea rooms.

There are a few minor points about opening a tea room that should be cleared up. No man or woman wants to walk blindly into the tea room business.

The first essential for a tea room is a location. Grab an empty barn or a former home of a pioneer, and you have solved one of the most difficult problems.

The next has to do with tea room furniture or chairs and tables. A successful tea room has original chairs and tables. The tables must be constructed so that the customers' limbs or legs immediately come into contact with the table's legs. This is accomplished by taking an old checkerboard and placing nine twisted short canes underneath, and then covering the top of the table with a piece of unused glass and a doilie—that depicts a home laundry in operation. The table should either be the height of the guests' knees or come up to the bottom of their necks.

The next step is the chairs. They should be constructed so that most of the guests' sitters should be somewhere else except on the chair. Good sharp, rough edges, with a diamond shape back completes the chair. The chair should never be the same height as the table. In fact, the best chairs are those that give you something to remember them by.

As to the china or eating dishes, a little thought must be given. The main idea is to use dishes that the customer can't find unless he gets his or her sleeve in the soup—and vegetable soup, colored with a couple of carrots is something that goes big. Water glasses should be colored, so that if there is anything wrong with the water the tag is on the drinker. Sugar bowls should be of the same thickness as the ashtrays, and the salt and pepper shakers, if you go in a big way to put your tea room over, should be so divided that the cook gets a chance to use them once in a while.

You may need a cashier. The best method is to block the entrance with the cashier. This imparts a delightful sense of security to the guests. They will leave some of the food on their plates if they know they are being watched, and the food bill for your help is cut down materially.

You will probably need waitresses. They can be had by your agreeing to split half the tips they collect. If the waitresses do real good you can sell them part of the tea room.

Lighting arrangements shouldn't cause much worry. A couple of candles and you're all set. Too much light gives the customer the chance to see what he or she is eating. That is one of the unwritten laws of a tea room. Never let the customer know what his knife, fork or spoon is going to hit into. And this silverware, by a small cash payment at any ten-cent store is yours.

Napkins of paper can be used over and over again, provided the customer doesn't kick. If they kick, let them do as they do at home, use their sleeves or the tablecloth, and as you haven't got any tablecloths, the sleeves for them.

In case you get hungry while operating your tea room, there's a regular restaurant in your neighborhood.

Force Of League Of Nations Debated As Tokio Withdraws

Chief Public Interest Aroused By Oriental Move Is As To Action Likely To Be Taken By Other Nations In Existing Crisis

While there is expression of regret that Japan has withdrawn from the League of Nations, chief interest attaches to the future of the league and the attitude of various nations toward charges of violation of treaty agreements. Two years' notice of withdrawal retains membership for Japan during that period, and the resulting situation, combined with the Japanese claim to mandated islands in the Pacific, offers a problem of diplomacy.

"The league," in the opinion of the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, "is undoubtedly the loser through the defection of Japan—the loser, if its importance and influence are short-sightedly judged from a merely size or numerical standpoint. With the two greatest Far Eastern powers, Russia and Japan, outside the league membership, and with the two largest countries in the western hemisphere, the United States and Brazil, also abstaining from it, the Geneva parliament of man shrinks, on its face, into the dimensions mainly of a European bund. But what the league loses through the withdrawal of a powerful constituent like Japan it as surely gains in its moral prestige. In disciplining and condemning Japan, in placing upon its forehead the brand of international guilt, the league not only preserved its dignity and the excuse for its existence. It saved its soul."

"The causes of war would have existed more numerous, and the danger of it would have been just as imminent," declares the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL, "without the league; but they wouldn't have been discussed. They wouldn't have been generally recognized. That democratic safeguard, freedom of speech, has become international under the auspices of the league. With it inevitably has arisen consideration of warfare and armament from the taxpayers' point of view. Health, wealth, morals, peace and every interest of the international community have been studied, correlated and brought to the attention of all the peoples by the league staff. The influence has been more profound than perhaps any other force only compare state papers and the news of former days with the present style to appreciate how completely international relations have been revolutionized."

Tokyo seems to see signs of life in the BALTIMORE EVENING SUN, "that nobody else can see in Geneva. If the league is really too hot for Japan, this fact is the most encouraging evidence of survival Geneva has shown in many years." The FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM views the resignation as "a mere gesture and relatively unimportant." It adds that we have been knowing for a year that Japan never has belonged to the league in cooperative spirit, that which serves expediency is not true membership. The Star-Telegram voices the judgment: "The United States refused to join the league, founded largely by our war president, but we have constantly been a participant in league aims. Japan has been a member rendering lip service to the while was biding its good time for conquest of China in internationalism as among the units of the human race. Nothing counts but the motive."

"To resign from the League of Nations is possible for any member; to secede from the world of nations is impossible," asserts the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL, "with the resignation of Japan from the League of Nations which was announced by Emperor Hirohito upon the advice of the privy council, will mark the end of the League of Nations—but that's very doubtful. More probably, the resignation of Japan marks the beginning of a renewed world-wide movement to make the league a more effective instrument for the preservation of the peace of the world."

"The hope of the world," proclaims the PASADENA STAR-NEWS, "is that Japan, sooner or later, will awaken to the grave loss it is facing, the loss of civilization's respect. . . . There are observers at Geneva who believe that the surest way to peace in the Orient and in the world is for the league, joining with the United States and Russia, to take a strong position at the outset. Because of the league's report, adverse to Japan, and because of Japan's decision to withdraw from the league and to proceed with its Jehol campaign in all haste, the situation is approaching a crisis which requires cool heads—as distinguished from scare heads—as well as from timid hearts—in every world capital."

"The league has brought to bear on this strange and threatening situation in the Orient," says the SALT LAKE DESERET NEWS, "a weapon that human history has proved to be greater than gunpowder, armored vessels or bombing planes—the force of public opinion. National pride, trade advantages, the complex of race will often hinder the effect of world opinion. On the other side to help it are the sense of justice that permeates humanity and a spiritual quality of brotherhood, which knows no bounds of rivers, mountains or seas. The league has brought to bear on the eastern trouble the important factors of accurate information and open discussion. These two intangibles dissipate the confusing fog of propaganda and prepare humanity to act in possession of the facts."

"The resignation will become effective in March, 1933, and a radical change in the Japanese government's personnel before that time may reverse the aggressive policy now followed by Emperor Hirohito and his advisers." In the judgment of the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS, while the CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST suggests that support of the league by the United States might cause Japan to "accept the judgment of the league." The HOUSTON CHRONICLE remarks: "The next few weeks will see the league's sponsors tried to the utmost. They must act with decision if they are to survive." The ROCKFORD REGISTER-REPUBLIC sees "a convincing demonstration of its impotence." The DAYTON DAILY NEWS charges Tokio with "defiance of the rest of the world" while the NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PIGAYUNE records the sentiment that "Japan will be the chief sufferer in Japanese internal politics."

Resolute world treatment of the Oriental situation is advocated by the CLEVELAND NEWS and the importance of Japan's assumption of ownership of mandated islands is emphasized by the OAKLAND TRIBUNE and the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL. The ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION concludes that if Japan shows support for naval limitation, "some of the more disastrous consequences of withdrawal from the league may be avoided."

HOW DO THEY KNOW?
The citizens of San Francisco, after the earthquake and fire disaster in the early part of the century were very touchy about any reference to an earthquake. It was a "fire" that destroyed San Francisco.

Los Angeles seems not to be so touchy. The opinions of the earthquake specialists in Pasadena and Palo Alto are published in the Los Angeles papers. These specialists seem to be peeved that the earthquake was not more serious. They say: "This is not the great shake that we have expected; that shake is yet to come."

What does man know about anything that goes on below the surface of the earth more than a matter of ten thousand feet? It is doubtful whether any drill has penetrated the surface of the earth more than ten thousand feet or even that far. The deepest oil well has been drilled about eight thousand feet and there is no record of which the writer has any knowledge, of a drill going any deeper.

Geologists may try to figure from the top of the highest mountain to the extreme depth that a drill has penetrated the earth and tell us the exact formation of the earth clear to its center, but it is mere speculation, and whether there are great roaring fires or not or whether or not there are great crevices down deep under the surface of the earth is something that no man can actually tell.

Earthquakes do happen in various parts of the surface of the earth; cyclones destroy; floods take their toll in human lives and property, but the old world rolls on just the same.

MONEY RETURNS TO BANKS

THREE years ago capital and labor were looking around for signs of an enduring prosperity. Their anxiety at that time was not unfounded. Today they are looking around for signs of a returning prosperity, and here and there are picking up evidence warranting some confidence. As to the return of good times there are rays of hope.

As economic recovery depends largely upon improvements in the credit situation, anything indicating new confidence offers a ray of hope.

That money is pouring back into the banks is indicated by a decline in postal savings deposits. There is no more of that hysteria which resulted in these deposits quadrupling last year. Business and financial authorities attribute this sudden about-face to the stemming of the flood of bank closings. Once the public knew the federal government stood back of the banks all fear and uncertainty disappeared.

Uncle Sam did not hurt himself when his own hand closed the hole through which bank savings were pouring into postal savings. He benefits more from normal banking conditions than from abnormal postal savings deposits.

HOME, CHURCH AND SCHOOL

A federal judge in Philadelphia recently gave some good advice to a group of naturalized citizens who had just attained that status.

"Watch your children and give them good examples," he said. "Support your churches, no matter what their denomination. Go often to see the teachers of your children and thank them for the work they are doing for them."

In the recent, unlamented boom days, children were supposed to be pretty wild. Much was heard of "flaming youth." Parents, however, were largely to blame because the "good example" had rather gone out of fashion. The schools were supposed to do all that was done about training for character, as well as imparting education. Parents were too busy with their own interests to co-operate much with the school.

Times have been changing rapidly. Ideas similar to those of the judge's Americanization talk are becoming more common. Native-born parents need to adopt them as much as do the newly-naturalized citizens. Home, church and school must work together for community welfare. None of them can perform alone the task of advancing civilization.

A VICTIM OF PROGRESS

One more tangible souvenir of the New York of the lively stable and private shaving mug era, when all the world was young, will shortly fade from the metropolitan scene when the Second Avenue Railroad Company supplants its street cars with shiny new buses. When the road was laid down horse cars were the standard means of locomotion, giving place in time to cable cars. These, in turn, yielded to electric trams, first with trolleys, then with underground transmission lines, and finally the autobus is victorious over all its predecessors. Eighty years during which its conveyances have rolled up and down Manhattan's East Side, its drivers swathed in veils during blizzards, its horses helped by "hill-boys" with extra teams at Forty-fifth street, have been eighty years of urban progress, and, having served its purpose, the old order yields its place again to the new.

Perhaps there will be a time when of the millions who ride today in surface trolleys only a few can recall to wondering audiences the details of blue-uniformed conductors, transfer slips, the red plush seats and the dangling leather halyards for ringing up fares. To have bumped over cobblest switch points may be in future what to have ridden in a stagecoach was to the wondering generation of only yesterday. For more than a quarter of a century now the electric tram has been a homely and a friendly institution, and to some at least there can be scant compensation in any locomotive contrivings of modernity for the snore of its motors getting under way, the bluff courtesy of its piloting ancient, the naive and forbidden thrill of riding its platforms and the familiar, vanishing cry of "Fares, please."—The New York Herald Tribune.

UP TO FRANCE

American public opinion undoubtedly will support the intimation by Secretary Hull to France that the United States is not prepared to treat with the French government, in the matter of war debts, on the same basis as with Great Britain.

This attitude is due to the fact that France defaulted on its installment of $19,000,000 due last December while Britain paid the $95,000,000 due from her at the same time. The fact that the latter was off the gold standard and her finances were in bad shape did not prevent her from making settlement. France was in a much better condition to pay her installment. She had on hand a huge stock of gold.

If France and the other nations which defaulted when they could have paid seek to be treated on a par with Great Britain, it is up to them to correct their delinquencies by paying the installments overdue.

The United States has begun preliminary discussions with England looking to a settlement of the debts problem as affecting that country. That a satisfactory settlement will be reached here seems no reason to doubt, although the negotiations may be long and complicated.

World conditions demand that the entire question of war debts be disposed of as quickly as possible. Great Britain and the United States recognize this. France and the other defaulters can assist the process by doing their parts.

A SIAMESE DEMOCRACY

In the midst of all this talk about dictatorships, the news dispatches carry, in an obscure manner, the news that King Prajadhipok has declared a state of emergency and dissolved his government prior to establishing a democracy.

The monarch will rule with a council of 20 under the constitution until the machinery of democratic government is properly established.

This news is probably unimportant when compared with contemporary international and national occurrences of the past six weeks. But it carries some significance, at that. It shows that not all the governments of the world are thinking in terms of dictatorships.

Rural Schools To Close Soon

Only Eight More Days of School Remain For First School To End Sessions

HIGH SCHOOLS TO SHUT DOWN IN MAY

Only eight more days of school remain for the pupils of the McFarland school in Scott township, which will end its sessions on April 18. Vergil Hockenberry is teacher. This will be the first rural school to end its term of eight months.

The McCaslin school in Scott township, taught by Miss Effie Book, will close the next day; as will the Rocky Point school in the same township taught by Jesse E. Carr.

Plaingrove township schools exclusive of the high school will suspend on the 20th, and the following week will find practically all the remaining schools having an eight-month term suspending.

The rural high schools, which have a nine-month term, will close during the latter part of May. Whereas some of the schools did not close until June 10 last year, it is hoped to have all of the rural high school sessions end before the first of June.

When night came Mr. and Mrs. Donley and four children were in their new home which they have bought, and Mr. and Mrs. Brest and Buddy and Bobby were safely housed in their new abode, which is a very short distance from Gardner.

There was a very happy family party on a recent evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McKinley in Willow Grove when Mrs. McKinley gave her husband a surprise birthday party. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McKinley of Castlewood, and their sons and daughters and their children were all there, and the father and mother of the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Orin E. Vance of the Vance road. A special guest was an aunt of the family, Mrs. Rebecca Moore of Sewickley.

Their relatives who read this paper will be glad to learn that the Lewis Wigton family of 1023 Elm avenue, Long Beach, Cal., were not injured, and the only damage to any of the homes was at home of the mother where a tall chimney fell on the kitchen roof and caused the plaster on the ceiling to fall, and the radio fell and was broken, and a globe from the ceiling, but this was all the damage that was done. Mrs. Wigton's niece at Gardner received a letter from Miss Louise Wigton saying: "The school buildings and the churches are the worst hurt as many of both will have to be torn down and entirely rebuilt. The banks were not damaged. Unemployment has vanished from Long Beach. Every one has work and the task of rehabilitation is going forward rapidly."

Passover Service At Temple Israel

Feast Of Emancipation Will Be Ushered In With Appropriate Ceremonies

Temple Israel, Highland and Moody avenues, will conduct its next regular service on Friday evening, April 7, at 8 p. m. Rabbi Avery Jonah Grossfield officiating. The topic of the sermon will be: "Compensations—A Passover Reflection".

The Saturday morning program includes religious school classes between 9:30 and 11 o'clock and religious services between 11 and 12 o'clock. Two members of the children's congregation, Naomi Conn and Howard Love—will take part in reading the prayers.

There will be a short pre-Seder service, without a sermon, on Monday evening, April 10, at 5:45 o'clock, at which time the prayers will be rendered in the traditional Passover melodies. It is expected that a large number of persons will be present to usher in the Pesach Festival in the proper spirit.

A number of Temple Israel families are arranging to have out-of-town students from Westminster and Slippery Rock Colleges as guests at their homes for the Seder service. Mrs. J. P. Perelman is chairman of the student hospitality committee, and those interested are asked to communicate with her.

After the Friday evening service, the members and friends will enjoy an hour of fellowship in the vestry rooms as usual.

The Feast Of Emancipation

Passover (Pesach) is the festival observed by the Jew in the early spring in commemoration of the Exodus from Egypt. It begins this year on the evening of April 10 and is observed for eight days by Orthodox Jews, and for seven days by Reform Jews. In ancient Jewish life, it was the first of the three Pilgrim festivals upon which every male Jew was required to present himself in person at the central sanctuary in Jerusalem.

Although the Passover has certain features in common with the universal spring festival, it is its historical significance which gives it lasting vitality. It is the great Independence Day of the Jew, the first event in his national history, an event which became fundamental in all his thinking, as evidenced by the frequent reference to the great deliverance from Egypt.

The festival is ushered in by a family service, called the Seder, at which certain symbolic ceremonies are observed. Each participant is required to drink four cups of wine, in memory of the four promises made by the Eternal to redeem Israel from bondage. On the table, are the unleavened cakes (Matzo), the shibboleth of a lamb (roasted on the coals), commemorative of the Paschal sacrifice, a roasted egg; a mixture of apples and nuts (Charoseth), to symbolize the mortar with which the Egyptians made bitter the lives of our ancestors; and bitter herbs (Moror), reminiscent of the unhappy days in Egypt. In song and story, the tale of the oppression and the deliverance is rehearsed. Psalms of thanksgiving strike the key-note of the happy occasion. The services, interrupted for the family dinner, close with a number of merry folk-songs, expressive of the character of the celebration.

During the festival, unleavened bread is eaten instead of the usual leaven. In Orthodox homes, great care is taken that all traces of leaven be removed before the beginning of the festival. Sets of dishes, for this holiday, are provided.

Many Rural Pupils Miss No Sessions

Over 2,000 Are Expected To Show Perfect Attendance Records For Year

More rural pupils in Lawrence county are expected to show perfect attendance records this year, than any preceding year, County Superintendent of Schools John C. Syling stated today. The number is expected to exceed 2,000, based on reports which have been submitted to date.

With a great number of the larger schools yet to report, the number at the present time is 1,111. Additional reports will unquestionably bring the number well over 2,000.

The best previous record was a little more than 1,900. The past year has found few epidemics of any kind running through the schools, influenza having affected the New Wilmington schools, just prior to Christmas, while there were a few scattered instances of measles in some of the other districts, but as a whole, there was little disease reported.

Gripping Story Of Battle With Death Told By Survivors

Three U. S. S. Akron Sailors
Cling To Gasoline Can
And Await Rescue

Lucian Rutan, Another Of
Crash Victims, Drowns
Before Ship Arrives

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 6.—A dramatic story came to light Wednesday of how four members of the crew of the Akron struggled in the black waters of the Atlantic immediately after the crash; how they recognized each other between lightning flashes as they clung to a gasoline tank and how finally one of them—Lucian Rutan, machinist's mate—slipped into the sea to his death before the agonized eyes of his companions.

There they were, on different parts of The Akron, when the crash came, rending the metal and fabric. Into the sea they were tossed semi-conscious but still alive!

As the four men swam about blindly in the murky, foggy night they reached out and touched something hard and cold—but buoyant. It was a gasoline tank!

Four sets of fingers pull four heads over the edge of the tank. Four hearts skip a beat or two, and four souls send up a prayer of thanks to God.

Recognize One Another
They look over the edges of the tank. They recognize one another. One is Boatswain's Mate Richard E. Deal. One is Metal-Smith Moody E. Irwin.

One is Robert W. Copeland, chief radio operator.

And the other is Rutan.

"Hello," they say to one another. "Any others?" asks Deal. Their eyes search the tossing, icy waters.

They look back at one another's eyes. Dawning horror grips them. They shake their heads.

"Good God!" mutters Irwin.

Ghostly Hulk
They look again. Fading away before the surface gale they see the ghostly, ghastly hulk that had been the flying coffin for three score men and ten—it's the only sign on all the tossing, dead gray wet expanse.

Their eyes come back over the flat top of their floating gas can. "All gone!" mutters Rutan.

His hands, and those of Irwin are red, raw, bloody, where the skin and flesh has given way over burns, and cuts.

His fingers start to slip. "Hang on, boy," Deal tells him. Rutan looks back, and forces a wistful sort of smile. "As long as I can," he says.

Can Is Slippery
Copeland's head sinks forward. It seems he's about to slip off. Irwin reaches across a corner of their floating gas can and catches Copeland's sleeve.

They are locked, so, across the corner of the can.

Rutan's fingers slip again—he barely manages to get a fresh hold. "Hold it, Buddy," says Deal. "I'm coming over to you."

An inch at a time Deal starts to edge his way along the slippery tank. There can be no sudden movement. That might dislodge Copeland and Irwin, grimly draped across that opposite corner.

Slowly—slowly—

Rutan Drowns
Then Rutan's eyes catch those of Deal. The wistful smile comes again to Rutan's lips.

"Never mind, Buddy," he says. "Never mind about me."

The fingers relax their grip. Rutan drops out of sight.

There are not four on the floating gas can now. There are three. They hang grimly on.

Copeland is completely out. Irwin's burned and lacerated hands are a torture. They decide to shift positions. Deal takes one of Copeland's arms and one of Irwin's. Irwin takes one arm of Copeland and one of Deal. A triangle of

Debate Gas Rates At Washington, Pa.

Coal Operator Charges Wash- ington Coal Business Faces Collapse

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Pa., April 6.—Charges that Washington county's coal business will collapse if the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company is required to remove its gas lines from this section, made by Grant Moninger, independent coal operator, today were under advisement by city council here.

The charges were hurled at council members in a debate on gas rates, a controversy that is now occupying the attention of the solons.

Moninger told council that artificial gas distributed here is manufactured in West Virginia from Washington county-mined coal.

Mayor Robert E. Griffiths defending the city's stand in the issue pointed out that artificial gas is a by-product of coal and had no connection with the rate fight or attempts to remove artificial fuel from utility company lines serving Washington county. He further argued that explosions have occurred in several homes from use of artificial fuel.

Warn Revellers In Pittsburgh

Police Declare Celebration
Can Not Be Extended
Beyond 12:45

EXTRA POLICE OUT IN PHILADELPHIA

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 6.—Quaffing of warm beer appeared in the offing for Pittsburgh revellers over the return of the legalized amber fluid early tomorrow as police today announced their intention of "strict enforcement" of the 12:45 a. m. closing for all cabarets.

The foamy drink cannot be started from the breweries to the places of merriment until 12:01 a. m., leaving just 44 minutes for transportation and consumption. Managers of establishments planning "beer parties" said they expected the demand would be:

"Beer, warm or cold."
Extra details of police will go on duty at midnight to keep traffic moving freely, particularly in the vicinity of breweries.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—Thousands of thirsty subjects of jovial King Gambrinus smacked their lips today in anticipation of the amber torrent of legalized 3.2 per cent beer that on the stroke of 12 tonight will wash away 13 years of official national dryness.

Within a half hour after midnight, the city's hotels, restaurants, beer gardens and clubs are expected to have beer on tap in bottles in almost unlimited quantities.

Acting Superintendent of Police Joseph Lestrangere ordered the entire force of 4557 patrolmen and officers to report for duty at 10 o'clock to-night and remain at their posts until relieved.

MOTHERS OFTEN CAUSE COMPLEX, WORKERS DECLARE

Mothers who hate to see their children grow up are causing a serious complex in the minds of their little charges, is the belief of Miss Julia Williamson, national Girl Scout field worker, who has been in this city since Monday.

It is a complex that often stays with the children thru-out their lives and acts as a detriment in every activity in which they are engaged.

"Never hold a child back, whether at home, in school, in Brownie work or Girl Scouting," Miss Williamson advises the local Girl Scout leaders. "Always let them think that the best is yet to come. Don't allow them to regret leaving stages of life with which they are through. Build up anticipation for the next stage."

"The worst thing a boy or girl can hear," Miss Williamson concludes, "is his or her mother's remarks that she doesn't like to see her child stop being a baby."

The conclusion of a series of programs in the Youngstown, Mercer, Rose Point and New Castle Reformed Presbyterian churches came to a close Wednesday evening when the four churches united in the final meeting of "The Ideal Church Program" meetings, in the local church on Oak street, of which Dr. E. A. Crooks is pastor.

There was a splendid representation from each of the four churches involved and Miss Anna Patton of the Central Reformed Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh, a city missionary worker, who does an intensive work in the downtown north side district of Pittsburgh, related many interesting experiences of her work.

Rev. Samuel E. Boyle of the East End Reformed Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh presented the obligation of the church in general and his own denomination in particular, to occupy the entire field of the church work. He stressed the fact that each individual should take up the obligation of personal evangelism.

NO STATE REGULATION AS BEER SALES START

By WILLIAM J. KELLY
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 6.—On the eve of the return of legalized beer, Pennsylvania's General Assembly today stood at the parting of the ways as to how manufacture and sale of the foamy fluid should be controlled.

Hopes of having a law to stem the tide of the 3.2 beverage waned as the senate prepared to act on final passage of the Sowers-Conner regulatory measure. As the zero hour approached, the body appeared badly split over the issue, radically amended on its speedy journey through legislative halls.

The bill, in its present form, faces a certain veto from Gov. Gifford Pinchot. If amended again, it cannot be passed finally at the closing session of the week.

Consequently, Pennsylvania will have its beer, unrestricted by state taxation, after a 13-year thirst.

The fate of the regulatory measure was badly clouded in the senate late yesterday. Senator Charles W. Stuenkel, Schuylkill, cast aside the commission form of issuing licenses and substituted the county court judges.

Confusion and opposition was added by the stand of Senator Henry L. Snyder, Lehigh. He amended the measure so that beer could be sold in any establishment, where food is served, regardless of the existence of the old-time bar. His amendment was accepted by the bare constitutional majority, 26.

WHITE ROBIN IS SEEN IN COUNTY

Whether it had been burdened with more worries than it could stand, or that it was born a member of the albino species—well, that is a problem for a "birdologist", not this scribe.

But Jess Shaffer is willing to go down on record as seeing a white robin. That it was a robin, he is certain. And that it was white, he is also certain. The strange creature was singing the spring song below Princeton Tuesday on the Shaffer farm. No, it hadn't been rolling in flour.

RALLY AT HIGHLAND

Members of the Highland church Boy Scout Troop 15 met in the Highland caves (beneath the church) on Tuesday evening with Scoutmaster R. F. Davis, Assistant Scoutmaster Harry Miles and 25 scouts, six visitors and seven troop committeemen present.

Chairman Harry Pearce of the troop committee presented each scout with registration cards.

Ray Cartwright was introduced as the new committeemen in charge of cub scouting.

The point contest, which has been under way since September 27, 1932, closed April 1, and the five high point scouts will take an overnight trip to the state forests in Clearfield county. Results of the contest give George Stitzinger, Budd Barr, Bob Dix, Bob Evans and Dave Pyle as victors.

The high patrol in the contest was the Eagle patrol, with James Hartland leader. It won 2,192 points.

A new contest has already started and will run until camp time in July.

Part of the meeting time was used to study the stars, each scout being subjected to an examination on their findings.

Ladies of the Baldwin Bible class served the group with ice cream at the close of the meeting. Bugler Johns sounded the taps.

Next Tuesday evening will be test night for the troop. A first aid contest is to be held.

BUD FALLS, scribe.

Student Singers Present Concert

Vocal Program Entertains
Kiwanis Members—Greet
'Young Kiwanians'

Bidding farewell to the two student Kiwanians who sat with them during their luncheons of the past three months, and welcoming two newcomers chosen to fill their place, the New Castle Kiwanis Club Wednesday afternoon enjoyed a fitting Easter music program which talented singers of the senior high school presented.

The concert following luncheon was given by a group of eight vocalists, all winners in the county-wide musical contest held at New Wilmington on Saturday. They are expected to sing in a district meet at Erie next Tuesday.

With the students came their director, Miss Gladys Rich, who announced the various numbers.

President Norman E. Clark, presiding over that part of the program which the retiring student Kiwanians conducted, welcomed the entire group of visitors.

Rex Rowland and John Stump, the seniors who today closed their Kiwanis experience, welcomed to the club David McBride and Thomas Stevenson, chosen to succeed them by Principal Frank L. Orth at the request of the club's vocational guidance committee.

Handsome framed certificates, carrying the full Kiwanis creed, were presented by President Clark to Rowland and Stump and to Harold Dickson and Robert Lennig, the first pair of student Kiwanians, who were seated among the guests. Julius Blaha is chairman of the Kiwanis vocational guidance committee, whose chief function is to assist boys in the selection of their future work.

The following students, all members of the school's victorious double quartet, sang:

Marion Wilkison, Mary Virginia Roberts, sopranos; Ruth Wilkison, Cecelia Hasulak, altos; Sam Dennis, Morgan Jones, tenors, and William Fletcher, Henry Wilkison, baritone.

Featuring were the numbers of the boys' quartet, tenor solos, soprano solo, baritone solo and girls' trio, rendered by different students from the group of eight.

PUPILS' STRIKE BRINGS MOVE TO PAY TEACHERS

Twenty Thousand In Chicago Action

School Board Officials Are Forced To Provide For Salaries

TEACHERS UNPAID FOR EIGHT MONTHS

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, April 6.—Threatened with a protracted strike of 20,000 public school students in protest against non-payment of salaries to teachers school board officials and bankers acted today to obtain the necessary cash to meet back salaries.

Under plans worked out at a conference of school officials with Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens committee on public expenditures, $1,700,000 in cash and $18,000,000 in tax warrants will be made available shortly to the teachers who have gone payless for eight months. They were to discuss the situation today with prominent bankers.

Pupils Demand Action
Twenty thousand elementary and high school students walked out of their classrooms yesterday in all parts of the city. Carrying banners protesting the non-payment of the 18,000 teachers and other school employees, the school children behind bands, shouting demands that the teachers be paid.

While school officials were hopeful that the students would return to their classrooms today plans were underway for another strike this morning which, it was feared might spread to schools not affected by the first walkout.

Plans for the strike had been underway for a month. In some schools strike notices were pasted up on the walls and in others the word was passed verbally.

Highland Church Annual Meeting

Congregation Enjoys Dinner, Hears Reports And Names Trustees And Elders

Wednesday evening the annual congregational meeting of the members of Highland United Presbyterian church was held, with a good fellowship dinner marking the early evening. Places were arranged for one hundred and seventy five and a delicious menu was served by the Naomi Circle.

At 8 o'clock the business session was called to order with the pastor, Rev. D. L. Ferguson, opening the service.

An election of elders resulted in the same four men being chosen for a period of three years; those men are R. A. Eckles, J. M. Wallace, J. E. Rumbaugh and W. D. Jones. At this point the meeting was turned over to R. L. Wallace as chairman and the election of trustees was held. It was with regret the congregation accepted the resignation of H. A. Wilkison, who has been a trustee of the church since its organization, and in his place W. I. Clark was elected and Ellwood Gilbert was re-elected. Ray D. Rhodes was named a member of the music committee.

The reports from the various departments of the church showed the past year to have been an encouraging one, with each department doing an excellent work through the year, with an increase in membership both the Sunday School and church membership.

AND GETS PAID FOR IT
A visitor in Washington who was slightly acquainted with a prominent former public official went one afternoon to the palatial building in which the official once had a luxurious office. The visitor approached the doorman and said that he would like to see Mr. So-and-so.

"I'm sorry," replied the servant. "But he is not here. He has retired."

"Well, of all things," exclaimed the visitor, "The idea of him going to bed at this time of day."

Plan To Battle Farm Relief Bill

Republicans In Senate Are Opposed To Administration Relief Plan.

DEMOCRATS READY TO FORCE PASSAGE

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 6.—The first major legislative battle of the new congress opened in the senate today with the Republican minority declaring war on the administration's billion-dollar farm relief bill. The Republicans were called into party conference this morning to adopt battle plans. They proposed to fight passage of the bill, which the administration drafted to increase farm prices from $800,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 a year.

Predict Passage.
The Democratic leadership, armed by an overwhelming majority in the senate, predicted its prompt passage. They hazarded a prediction it would be enacted by the middle of next week.

The bill carried a host of sections, proposing different plans for increasing farm prices. In addition, it carried a "rider" the administration's farm mortgage relief bill, which would authorize the government through different agencies to refinance farm mortgages and extend new credits to farmers.

By GIFFORD PINCHOT
Governor of Pennsylvania

Sometimes it is hard to understand just what is going on in Harrisburg. Especially with reference to the beer question. My position on this subject is plain to myself and I want to make it plain to everybody.

I am against two things, definitely and irrevocably.
First—the return of the saloon.
Second—Such brazen political mixing of beer and politics as is intended in the rank proposition to have beer licenses in Philadelphia, Allegheny and five other counties passed out by commissions named by Republican and Democratic county committees.

No good citizen, wet or dry, wants the return of the saloon. Nor does he want judges mixed up in the beer business. Nor does he want politicians mixed with beer.

I am a dry. But I want to say to the honest wets that the beer interests and the beer politicians are making an exhibition of themselves that will do more to prevent repeal of the 18th amendment than everything else put together.

These glaring attempts to bring back the worst features of the old days are making enemies by the thousand every day for the cause honest wets believe in.

I have said that it is difficult to understand sometimes what is going on in Harrisburg. It is even more difficult just now to understand what is happening in Germany, home land of beer.

Every good American is outraged by the evident intention of the Hitler government to persecute the Jews in Germany. More harm is being done the German people, in the eyes of the world, by that than by anything that has happened since the World War.

Hitler used to be a progressive. But power seems to have changed him. Apparently concentrated wealth has taken him over, as it has taken over so many politicians in America.

Religious persecution is barbarous. Enough blood has been shed down through the centuries to establish for all time the right of every human being to worship his God according to his faith. The whole civilized world resents, and properly resents, the inexcusable attacks on the Jews in Germany.

To revert to what is happening in Harrisburg. The legislature is now in its 14th week. Not a single bill of major importance has been passed.

This is not so much the fault of the members of the legislature, but of the leadership. The House is supposed to be controlled by the Republican organization. Even if the rank and file had lost their heads, strong leadership could have led them successfully, as a wise dog leads a blind man across the street. But this seems to be a case of a blind man trying to lead the dog.

The legislative machinery is buzzing aimlessly and impotently because politics is entangled in the wheels. Beer legislation is in a hopeless jam. Relief legislation is no farther advanced.

The people are not getting what they want from the legislature. They are not going to get what they want unless they demand in no uncertain terms that their representatives stop playing politics; stop dickering with special interests and get down to the business of useful unselfish public service.

Listener—Say, mister, can you comb your hair with it?

Newswriters In Harrisburg Poke Fun At Notables

Governor, Legislators And Officials Banquet Guests Of Newspapermen

BURLESQUE ON PROBE IS GOOD

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, April 6.—Legislators and other officials of state last night occupied seats on a gridiron warmed by the legislative correspondents association at its biennial frolic.

Nearly 300 guests were denied the privilege of the floor, accorded only to the newspapermen who discarded the reportorial bonds and wrote editorials in the form of song, poem, skit and movie. The state's political leaders were made the butt of two hours of horseplay as the newswriters sent fun-dipped darts in all directions.

Thomas W. Williams, Harrisburg, Mark Shields, Pittsburgh, and Robert B. Vale, Philadelphia, shared honors as masters of ceremonies. They introduced Gov. Gifford Pinchot and 19 other state officers, each of whom allegedly demanded the right to make a speech. They were allowed three minutes to speak simultaneously on their favorite subjects. The speech-making was called off, with applause. A three-way interpretation of the utility investigation, burlesqued by Mark Shields, scored heavily.

Mobilize New Army On 16th Anniversary Of War Declaration

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, April 6.—On the sixteenth anniversary of America's declaration of war, which saw the mobilization of more than 4,000,000 men, the federal government began today to recruit a new army—the army of the jobs, who are to be put to work in government reforestation camps.

The first "draft" of the new army is being enrolled in 16 cities, according to labor department officials. It amounts to 25,000 men, between the ages of 18 and 25, and eventually it is expected that 250,000 men will be laboring for their keep and $30 a month in the federal camps. The rate of pay is the same as the regular army.

Full details of the manner of recruiting and of actually getting the men into the field were being worked out today by officials of several government departments, agriculture, labor, interior, and war, under the general supervision of

Roosevelt Meets Three Survivors Of Air Disaster

Lieut. Commander Wiley, Deal And Erwin Pay Visit To President

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, April 6.—The state will attempt to prove that Cyrus H. Neff, of Canfield, deliberately shot his wife to collect her insurance, special Assistant Prosecutor A. M. Henderson announced in his opening statement at Neff's first degree murder trial here today.

Henderson, who is aiding Prosecutor J. H. Lehighner in the case, further asserted that the state will produce testimony purporting to show that the shot which killed Mrs. Blanche Neff, at the Neff home last October, was fired at a distance of several feet.

The latter assertion conflicts with the contention of the defense, which alleges that the death shot was fired accidentally at close range while Neff was attempting to awaken his wife who was sleeping on a couch.

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, April 6.—The tentative program of the Roosevelt administration for the remainder of the present special session of Congress, including further banking, railroad and Muscle Shoals legislation, was outlined today by Speaker Henry T. Rainey.

Local Regulations Will Govern Until State Takes Action

With no state regulations controlling it, 3.2 per cent, legal lager beer will be on sale Friday morning in New Castle, with approximately 75 places being open for the sale of it. While the beer becomes legal for sale at one minute past midnight, it is thought that sale in New Castle will not start until some time after seven in the morning.

Until the general assembly agrees on a bill that can be enacted into law, there will be no restrictions here, save those which have been issued by Mayor Charles B. Mayne. These rules merely prohibit sales on Sunday, sales to minors, sales by persons convicted heretofore for bootlegging, and every sales place registered.

Because of amendments offered in the senate this week, the beer control bill cannot possibly be passed this week and will be up again next week.

Local retailers are getting beer shipped in early Friday morning to take care of demands and a few grocers are stocking case beer for delivery to their customers. Some of the restaurants and hotels are preparing to sell beer by the glass.

Erie Bowler Is Tourney Leader

Earl Hewitt, Erie, Pa., Has Grand Total Of 724 For Three Games.

(International News Service) COLUMBUS, O., Apr. 6.—Kingpin of the singles division, Earl Hewitt of Erie, Pa., was the latest idol of the American bowling congress here today.

Hewitt crashed to the top of the individual event yesterday with a powerful score of 724 points rolled up in games of 207, 259 and 258. He replaced Rudy Riepel of Milwaukee who had held the top spot with 722 points.

In addition to landing the first-place berth in the singles, Hewitt also squeezed into sixth place in the all-events divisions with an aggregate total of 1923.

Plenty "Hot."
Hewitt was "plenty hot" in his singles game yesterday and he proved his metal in the tight spots where a mis-placed ball would have ruined his chances. In the final frame, Hewitt needed 29 pins to step out ahead of Riepel and with the calm demeanor of a champion he batted out a trio of three clean strikes to take a total of 30.

In the third frame, of his last game, Hewitt drew the 4-7-10 split and immediately put his crashing hook ball into action, tapping off nine consecutive strikes.

One other change was chalked up in the "Big Ten" of the tournament and it also was the work of an Erie, Pa., Kegler. Totaling 618 in the team event, 670 in the doubles and 651 in the singles, Charley Johnson, snagged fourth place in the all-events.

Babe Ruth About Through, Yankees Hunting For Sub

Many Believe This Will Be Ruth's Last Year In Yankee Outfield

FRED WALKER IS BEING GROOMED

By DAVID J. WALSH

NEW YORK, April 6.—At the rate of $52,000 in twelve marked-down installments or only $4,333.33 every two weeks this time, on account of the depression, it seems that the big bluster and uproar man of the national profession, Mr. Ruth, is on his way back to us from the south as fat and blousy as an old southerner. That ought to interest the man who, in less than a week, is going to start paying the $4,333.33, including allowances, every other week.

What will interest Mr. Ruth is that the Yankee ball club is about to give up on him at last. Not only has it tentatively picked his exit, namely, the expiration of his contract in October. It even has picked his successor.

Walker Is Good
The latter is not Sam Byrd, of Birmingham, Ala., who has waited these four or five years for Mr. Ruth to subside finally and with what grace he might.

The successor is and will be, I am informed, Fred Walker, of Birmingham, Ala., who hit .357 for Newark last year and so thoroughly looks the part that the Yankees are about to permit Dusty Cooke to sink for the third and last time. Cooke is their perennial prospect, so if they part with him permanently in order to hold Walker, a second-year man, the gesture will be significant.

So much for those matters of concern to Mr. Ruth. What may concern the management is that, although Walker seems to have everything including some of the things Mr. Ruth no longer can muster, the ball players hold the young man in no high esteem.

Ruth About Through
However, whether this young man or some other is to step in, the time has almost come for Mr. Ruth to step out—and I say this advisedly.

Several of the new men are already beginning to blossom out. Coach Boyd has made several changes on the team. Captain Gallagher, c. . . . . 1 0 2
Nigro, g. . . . . 3 0 6
Ross, g. . . . . 1 0 2
Mumford, f. . . . . 4 0 8
DeMark, g. . . . . 1 0 2

Players Shifted
Schaas and Robertson have been shifted from the backfield and placed on the line. Morrison, the quarterback of the 1932 team, is playing a halfback post this year and Monico has been shifted to fullback.

Of the new men reporting, Huling, Todd, Wallace, Dean and Cifra look like the best bets to land varsity jobs if they hustle. Another switch sends Nugay to backfield from an end job. Bozar, Monico, Dean, Nugay and Huling are trying the punting end of the game and are doing fine work. Coach Boyd has been working to perfect form in his kicker this year.

Two men were dropped from the squad and three new men added by Boyd. The new men are Hurlz, Gollonka and Cifra. Captain Walter Sniezek of the 1932 team is assisting Boyd in coaching the linemen, and is proving very valuable.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Reduction of the American derby stake money from $50,000 to $25,000 had the approval today of Col. Matt Winn, president of the American Turf association.

The American derby is run each year at Washington Park track here with leading 3-year-olds competing.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

And now that May is approaching and the baseball players are yearning to clout or field the pill in the national drama, it is likely that city officials will cast an eye toward playing a part in satisfying those who are to better the playing plat, here. The better the game and the more satisfied fans. Last year many baseball fields were put in good condition by Director of Streets Stan Treser. It is hoped by the various baseball team managers that he continues the good work this year. Baseball is a national game, and the Lawrence County Twi-light league will have more than 200 players and officers.

Dunlap Favored In Golf Match

(International News Service) PINEHURST, N. C., April 6.—George T. Dunlap, Jr., of Garden City, N. Y., Walker cup star and medalist, was favored to defeat M. P. Warner of Yale, defending champion, in the feature semi-final match of the north and south amateur tourney today.

He made his ace on the seventh hole with a No. 1 iron, a shot of 214 yards.

Gas Fumes Kill Two Workmen

Fifteen Others Are Overcome By Fumes At Rankin Steel Plant

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 6.—Formation of a pocket of carbon monoxide around a faulty bleeder valve on a blast furnace at the Rankin plant of the Carnegie Steel Mill today was given as the cause of the deaths of two workmen and gassing of 15 others last night.

Five of the most seriously injured were in the West Penn hospital today. All were expected to recover. They were revived shortly after their admission to the hospital. Of this five, only H. A. Donovan, 40, Swissvale, was considered to be in a serious condition.

The other ten men were treated at the plant hospital and released. Officials said the accident occurred when the pocket formed while the valve was being fixed. They were unable to explain how the gas formed in the open air—the accident happened outside the plant building.

Those who were overcome inhaled the gas when they went singly to attempt to rescue their stricken fellow workers. They, in turn, were saved by others who obtained gas masks from the plant.

In Rally TodayTelephone And Steel Stocks
Are Strong In Day's Revival(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 6.—The stock market rallied 1 to more than 3 points today in heavy trading following official denial that the Chicago and North Western Railroad would reorganize.The high speed ticker fell behind in the first half hour buying rush for the first time since the post-holiday market boom.
Strength in bonds and a further rise in commodities aided the upturn. Wheat and corn rose more than a cent a bushel to new highs while cotton spurted 50 cents a bale. Profit-taking halted the rise in the second hour but the undertone was strong.

Turnover for the first half hour was 320,000 shares, the heaviest for this period since the market reopened after the banking holiday.

Ralls were in the van of the rise with the depressed North Western issues doubling in value. Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, Atchison, N. Y. Central and Northern Pacific scored gains of 1 to more than 3 points.

American Telephone rallied 3 points in the face of the order by the Public Service Commissions here and in New Jersey to cut the charge on French phones from 25 cents to 15 cents a month.

Steel Common was active and strong, rising nearly 2 points to a new high on the move following the upturn in the industry's operations. Utilities strengthened led by Consolidated Gas while Allied Chemical and American Can were other strong leaders. Sugar shares followed the commodity into a new high ground.

Akron Division Employees Hold Rally In City

Big Meeting Of Baltimore
And Ohio Employees Held
Last Night At City
Building

A rally of employees of the Akron division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for the purpose of considering the problems of the railroad and in the interests of legislation that will do away with "unfair" competition to railroads, was held last evening in the Sons of Union Veterans hall in the City building, with several hundred people in attendance.

The program of the evening was featured by numerous addresses and entertainment numbers presented, with T. K. Faherty, superintendent of the Akron division, presiding as chairman of the occasion. The entire affair was given under the auspices of the New Castle division of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans Association and its ladies' auxiliary, of which William Mulcahy and Mrs. C. J. Bernhart are the respective presidents.

Addresses presented during the evening dealt with the problems of the railroad in meeting what was termed by the speakers as "unfair" competition, and at the conclusion of the program a resolution was unanimously adopted which calls attention to the large amount of taxes paid by the B. & O. in the state of Pennsylvania and the fact that curtailed income is reducing the amount the state will derive from such taxation; also that there is now before the state legislature bills which will secure the proper regulation and taxation of commercial motor vehicles operating over the public highways.

The resolution pledges that those attending the meeting and supporting it will try and interest as many business and professional men and others of their respective communities as possible in the enactment of proper legislation which will relieve the railroads of the present "unfair competition" by commercial trucks and busses.

Program presented follows: introductory remarks, T. K. Faherty, superintendent; selection by string band, consisting of E. Dottle, W. D. Soper and John Brown; address, "Opportunities for Securing Freight Business", M. N. Preese; address, "Opportunities for Securing Passenger Business", L. Ashby; vocal solo, George Short; address, "The Veteran's Opportunity", T. N. Hockman; address, "The Employee Can Help Through His Labor Organization", A. G. Skundor; selection, Epworth church quartet, consisting of Harold Zeigler, tenor; Harry Wyman, second tenor; Don Potter, baritone, and Henry Wyman, bass; address, "What Railroad Taxes Mean in a Community", Attorney Wylie McCaslin; address, "The Outlook", R. M. VanSant; address, "What Railroad Employees' and Taxpayers' Associations Are Doing", J. W. Anderson.

A social hour was enjoyed following the program, during which delicious refreshments prepared by Harry Hood, the famous chef of the Baltimore and Ohio in this district, were served by a committee of ladies from the auxiliary, consisting of Mrs. William Mulcahy, chairlady; Mrs. Isaac Bowman, Mrs. Dennis Sturdevant and Mrs. O. Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Not that girl hitch hikers are out of the ordinary, but you hardly expect to find them thumbing their way at eleven o'clock at night. Which may be the reason why the young lady got picked up on the Butler Road.

She wasn't very old, admitted to being 19 and looked it, and said that she was a student in the University of Wisconsin and was getting home to New York for the Easter vacation. Between Tuesday noon and Wednesday night she had made it from Madison, Wisconsin to New Castle which isn't bad travelling in any sort of vehicle.

As to her looks, she never won any campus prizes for pulchritude, and she probably is never going to be used as a model. Further, ladies and gents, she had on woolen stockings and woolen stockings do not make for sex appeal.

Another card from a New Castle hiker who is surely due to get home before long, Harold K. Brest. This card is from Valetta, Malta, an island of 113 square miles, 250,000 people and controlled by the British. Historical note. Malta is not the place where they raised malted milk.

Further signs of spring. A flock of geese flying north—getting ready to open the summer place in Canada. No doubt—an ambitious citizen tarring the roof of his house—an employee of the state highway department painting a stop sign in his summer coat—dandelion hunters out in the townships cutting greens—blood tonics advertised in drug store windows—and gorgeously colored seed catalogues taking the place of current magazines.

Fred M. Weiss of Princeton is puzzled somewhat as to whether his chicken coop was visited by thieves Sunday night, or that his hens have taken up smoking cigarettes. Monday morning he found a package of cigarettes in the coop and not a hen claimed them.

He's not sure whether any hens were stolen for the flock is large, but he has made arrangements to have a lighter there for the next visit of the owner of the cigarettes. The light will consist of one charge of buckshot.

The hens could hardly have laid the cigarettes for they have a government tax stamp on them.

Tonight is either Brew Year's Eve, or the Night of the Big Deluge, depending upon where you are sitting. Beer comes back at one minute after midnight and tomorrow Sweet Adeline will be coming back into her own.

State Highway Officers Not To Stop Beer Trucks

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Apr. 6.—Pennsylvania state highway patrolmen will not interfere with the transportation of beer. Capt. Wilson G. Price, head of the organization, declared flatly today.

In answer to a query regarding the report that patrolmen intended to stop beer trucks because they had no formal orders to the contrary, Captain Price said:

"We never had to stop beer trucks and we are never going to. It's not our duty and never was. We never ask a man what he is hauling."

Price indicated that the state police was a unit charged with executing the liquor laws and said the motor patrol is merely obliged to enforce highway regulations.

Legal In Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., April 6.—Beer will be brought out of the back room in Ohio tonight on the twelfth stroke of midnight.

Final preparations for the reception were being laid today by the state liquor control commission, the personnel of which was completed last night by Governor George White with the appointment of the last three members of the seven-member board.

Although 3.2 percent beer will be legal immediately after midnight, only a small amount was expected to be available throughout the state as a result of the physical impossibility of the commission to act upon all applications for licenses.

Seeks One Fourth Cut Of Postoffice Expenses

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent
New Castle News

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Uncle Sam is asking the New Castle postmaster to reduce the expenditures at his postoffice by at least 25 percent. The fourth assistant postmaster general has just requested the local postmaster to cooperate in a drive to slash postal costs by one-quarter.

In sending out the request, Stillman Evans, the new fourth assistant, closed with the cryptic sentence—"Your cooperation is expected."

Mr. Evans declared it is the aim of the postoffice department to show an average reduction in the cost of all supply items furnished for use in the postal service of at least 25 percent, as compared with expenditures for last year. He asserted that "postmasters and all supervisory officials are advised that extreme economy must be practiced in ordering and in distributing postal supplies. This is in view of the reduction in all supply appropriations."

Mr. Evans said that where the business of their offices is less than heretofore, postmasters should have no difficulty in reducing the quantities of supplies necessary to carry on that business.

Compensation Hearings Held

Hearings are being conducted here today by L. E. Christley of Butler, referee in compensation for the state. The hearings are being held in the city council chambers.

ray of doctors present to testify in the various cases being heard this morning.

MACHINES COME TOGETHER AT SOUTH MILL STREET BRIDGE

Michael B. Conti reported to the police yesterday that he was enroute east on South street at South Mill street, made the regulation stop and then pulled out on Mill street. He claims that he was half way across Mill street as Richard E. Francis of 1027 Beckford street came south on South Mill street at this time and pulled to the left hand side and hit the bridge, damaging the left front fender of his machine. The machines also came together and the right fender of the Francis machine was damaged in this way, Francis claims Conti did not make the required stop.
